Amanda C. Bordelon Inducted into Worldwide Who’s Who for Excellence in Education

Dr. Bordelon’s prowess is in concrete materials

MURRAY, UTAH, July 19, 2013, Amanda C. Bordelon, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of The University of Utah, has been recognized by Worldwide Who’s Who for showing dedication, leadership and excellence in education.

Dr. Bordelon has two years of teaching experience and in her current role. Her areas of expertise include concrete and white topping pavement design. Her responsibilities are researching and teaching classes on fractures, forensics and concrete materials. In five years, Dr. Bordelon intends to become tenured and move into a leadership role.

She attributes her success to her ability to network. She became involved in her profession while in college; she knew she wanted to teach and conduct research.

Dr. Bordelon has a Ph.D., a master’s degree and a bachelor’s degree, all in civil engineering from the University of Illinois. She is a member of the American Concrete Institute’s Intermountain Chapter, a board member of the American Concrete Institute International and on three of its committees: Fiber Reinforced Concrete, Fracture Mechanics, and Cracking. She also belongs to the International Society of Concrete Pavements, and three committees of the Transportation Research Board: Pavement Rehabilitation, Young Members, Basic Research and Emerging Technologies on Concrete. Her hobbies are watching movies, hiking and gardening.
